Edwin Babcock, 90, Dies at Westery

Long Identified with Town's Industrial, Social and Religious Interests—Railroad Brings Suits Claiming West Broad Street Property—John Leary's Sudden Death—Accident to Frederick Bowman.

Edwin Babcock, the third oldest resident in Westery, and one of the most prominent citizens, died Wednesday morning at his home, in Elm street, in his 91st year, having been born in Westery, April 8, 1819. Edwin A. Schofield is a few months his senior, and "Aunt Betsy" Champlin is 92. Mr. Babcock was the son of Rouse and Hannah Brown Babcock. After attending private schools and academies, with his brother, Horace, he spent several years in the service of mercantile houses in the city of New York, acquiring a business experience of great subsequent value. At nearly the same time, the brothers decided to return to native Westery, and in 1848, under the firm name of E. & H. Babcock, they purchased the mills and water power at Potter Hill, previously owned by Thomas W. and Joseph Potter & Co., and for the next fifteen years carried on an extensive and profitable manufacturing business.

Then came one of those periods of financial embarrassment against which the best skill and foresight are inadequate safeguards, and like thousands of others, the Babcock brothers succumbed to the monetary revolution. All that remained of their honestly earned wealth was conscientiously handed over to their creditors, by whom it was promptly accepted as payment in full for an indebtedness of twice its amount. At the end of three years, by practice of strict economy, they surprised their creditors by paying the full amounts, principal and interest, of all old debts and unpaid balances. On the death of his brother, Rouse, in 1872, Edwin succeeded him as president of the National Phenix bank, in which he had long been a director. When, in 1901, the National Phenix bank, chartered in 1818 and the second oldest bank in Westery, decided to discontinue its business, the National bank, now the Washington Trust company, made the best offer and took over the business of that bank. President Edwin Babcock then became a director in the Washington Trust company made the best offer the time of his death. He was a grand old man, who took up his residence in the house in Main street now occupied by B. Court Bentley, moving from there to the Nelson Bentley house in Granite street, recently moved and owned by Dr. John Champlin, and from there to the residence owned by Mr. Babcock in Elm street, and which he had long been a director. Mr. Babcock was one of the original shareholders of the Pawcatuck library, and in 1838-39 was brigade inspector of the state militia for Washington county.

In early life Mr. Babcock attended the Seventh Day Baptist church, but for seventy years he has been a member of the Episcopal church, and for many years a warden. For nearly half a century he was choirman, and took an active interest in the work of the church. He leaves one son, Albert Babcock, who resides in Providence.

Westerly is included in the plan for a through shore line trolley route between New York and Boston. A gap of some twenty miles in southern Rhode Island and an unbridged crossing of the Connecticut river will soon be bridged by trolley between the two big cities by way of the coast line. The New London-Groton ferry is considered a part of the trolley route. Before summer it is probable that the electric railway from Stony Creek to Saybrook will be completed. This road, including an extension northward into the Connecticut valley, will be about thirty miles long.

The early completion of a bridge across the Connecticut river near its mouth is looked for, and when that is done the only break in electric railways along the coast will be between Westery and Peacedale. From New York to Westery and from Peacedale by way of Providence to Boston, the communication will be unbroken.

There were reports Wednesday that several children were sick in the Italian quarter of Westery, where there are cases of diphtheria. No physicians have been called in, the parents fearing that they might be quarantined. The matter was brought to the attention of the health authorities and an investigation has been made. It was found that there are now four cases of diphtheria and everything that is possible has been done to prevent the spread of the disease.

Insurance adjusters have not yet completed their work in connection with the Sunday morning fire. A partial settlement has been made with James A. Welch; that is, the insurance on some of the buildings has been paid. The adjusters, who are from the city of New York, are far from satisfied with the offer, but effort is being made to effect an amicable settlement.

The loss to the First Baptist church has been satisfactorily settled, the adjusters allowing the full amount claimed. The damage to the Town hall cornice has been adjusted, but settlement for the Dixon house damage is withheld pending the return home of the owner, William Segar. Settlement has been made for the damage to the house of the owner, William Segar. Settlement has been made for the damage to the house of the owner, William Segar.

Frederick Bowman, aged 80, who lived on Elm street, recently moved to a small house on Elm street, and whose earnings in a mill are the sole support of both, fell down stairs Tuesday evening and was seriously injured. He was taken to the hospital and is now in a semi-conscious condition by the grandson, and assisted to a more comfortable position. He was visited by a physician Wednesday and it was ascertained that while he was severely bruised and shaken up, no bones were broken.

Suits like that brought against Louis Cella, owner of the building on the site of the old City hall, by the New York and Boston trolley company, claiming possession by right of ownership, have been brought against other properties nearby in Westery. It is said more suits are to follow. Frank L. McGuire of the New London law firm of Hull, McGuire & Hull, advised by Deputy Sheriff J. E. Tubbs, was in Pawcatuck Wednesday afternoon, and made formal demand upon Nellie Rose, Mary and Charles Richmond, Elaine and Henry Stiles, who believe themselves to be owners of property located in West Broad street, skirted in the rear by the tracks of the railroad company, demanding possession of the property by the railroad company. Of course the demand was rejected in each case, and then notice of suits served, ordering the parties named to appear in court and defend their alleged title to the land. The railroad company sues for possession and claims as damages the amount of rentals since the land has been occupied by defendants.

As in the Cella case, in which the land in the semi-circle of the abutment of the bridge over West Broad street, the railroad company claims the Richmond, Rose and Stables properties, on the ground that they were included in the original right of way of the company. The rear of the properties encroach on the regular six rods right of way, and the company claims to have purchased the balance of these properties to the West Broad street line for embankment purposes. The buildings on the properties in question were there before the railroad was built, and before the railroad company. The present owners believe they have full title to the properties and will make every legal effort to retain possession.

There are five distinct suits in connection with these properties, two against the Richmonds, and one each against the Stables, Rose and Cella. They are returnable to the next session of the superior court for New London county.

While coming into the Westery railroad station on the 8:47 train from New London, Wednesday evening, Richard Morrison fell from the platform of the car on which he was standing, underneath the wheels, which passed over his left foot and cut it almost entirely off. The right limb was badly cut and bruised. Drs. Scanlon, Barber and May were called to attend the injured man, who was taken temporarily into the baggage room. It was decided that the left leg would have to be amputated below the knee, and on the 10:10 train Dr. Scanlon left with the patient for New London to perform the operation at Memorial hospital.

As the train, which is the New York express, pulled into the station it slowed up and then gave a sudden jerk ahead, which caused Morrison to lose his balance and fall. Two wheels went over his leg.

The injured man is about 45 years old, is a stonemason by trade, and lives on the West Side. He was returning home after having been in New London to transact some business for the Eagles, of which organization he is a member.

LETTERS TO THE EDITOR.

9

Mr. Editor: Without desiring to intrude between the gifted contestants for the discovery or re-discovery of the occult powers of the number 9, we would beg to introduce to your readers a few of the simpler peculiarities of that digit, namely that the products by 9, of the numbers in the common scale, run up to 8, if transposed, express also the products of the remaining four, from 6 up to 9, as for example:

2x9 equals 18	6x9 equals 54
3x9 equals 27	7x9 equals 63
4x9 equals 36	8x9 equals 72
5x9 equals 45	9x9 equals 81

Also note that the sum of the digits in each of these products is 9, and that reading both up and down the initial figures in the products, represent the scale of notation from one to eight in proper succession. A CIPHER.
Norwich, Feb. 15, 1910.

CASTELLANES SEEK $13,600 FROM PRINCESS DE SAGEN.

Sue for Back Annuities, Which They Allege Have Not Been Paid.

Paris, Feb. 16.—The Marquis and Marquise de Castellanes have instituted suit against the Princess de Sagen for $13,600 back annuities which they allege the count and countess, by the marriage settlement, engaged themselves to pay at the rate of $5,600 a year. This annuity was paid until the Count and Countess de Castellanes were divorced, when the countess, who was formerly Miss Anna Gould, refused to contribute further to the support of her former husband's parents.

M. Bonnet argued the case on behalf of the plaintiffs today, and M. Clemenceau will reply a week from today.

A $20,000 THEATER PARTY.

Steel Company's Entertainment for Its Agents.
Pittsburg, Feb. 16.—One of the most expensive theater parties perhaps in the history of the country, was announced yesterday, when it became known that the Jones & Laughlin Steel company had bought out all the boxes in the Grand as well as one hundred seats for the entire season of the night, when all the sales agents of the company, from coast to coast, will be entertained.

It is estimated that the gathering of these employees for this party, as well as the local expenses attached thereto, will reach $20,000. President F. Jones, Jr., and all the officials of the company will head the party.

Congressmen and Nepotism.

The practice of nepotism by members of congress, the appointment by them of their wives, sons, daughters, "their friends and relatives," to clerkships and secretaryships has come to be so universal that it would be unfair to condemn any particular senator or representative on account of it. They are all guilty, or nearly all, except those who are wealthy and who do not need the money. Of course the custom or system is shameful; it is a method by which congressmen squeeze out of the national treasury by indirect means that they fear not to vote to themselves. It is open and above board appropriation. If the salary of $7,500 a year be not enough for a congressman, the salary ought to be increased and the country should be saved the disgrace of forcing or permitting its representatives to engage in petty pilfering under a miserably false pretense. When a custom evil in itself becomes so well established that those who practice it are no longer held blamable by public opinion, the degrading effect of the custom nevertheless survives to the corrupting of persons addicted to it and congressmen who use the public moneys by one or another expedient, for private objects of themselves or their families must suffer some debilitation of their moral character.—Columbia, S. C., News.
